Introduction

'Emergency medicine' is an evolving medical specialty in India. Over the last 10 years, emergency medicine has grown at an extraordinary pace. The quality of care provided in the ED reflects the ethos of care of the hospital and this goes a long way in its reputation. Providing quality Emergency Medical Care is crucial. Getting quality and safe acute care is the right of every patient who comes in through the door of the ED. Apart from clinical acumen, efficiency at par with international standards is the need of the hour in emergency medicine.

About the Programme

Considering the importance of quality emergency care, National Accreditation Board for Hospitals and Healthcare Providers (NABH) announced Certification Standards for Emergency Department in Hospitals on July 2016. It contains 8 chapters and complete set of standards for evaluation of Emergency Department for grant of certification. The standards provide a framework for quality care of patients and quality improvement for Emergency Department within hospital. The standards help to build a quality culture at all level and across all hospital functions. Under the dynamic leadership of Dr. Venugopal P P, Director-Emergency Medicine, Aster DM Healthcare, 5 hospitals have achieved this prestigious NABH ED standards certification within 6 months period. Our 2 days CME will impart clear view of standard implementation and also critical topics related to Emergency Department like Triage, Disaster Management and Clinical Audits. Experts in Accreditation Process and Emergency Medicine will be the faculty for this programme. It will be a judicious mix of contact sessions, group exercises, checklist preparations and mock assessments.
